In today's world, every conscientious father is a busy man. On the job and at home, he must effectively handle many serious responsibilities - and it seems he has less and less time to collaborate with his wife in leading their growing children toward responsible adulthood. Above all, he needs time to think and plan so as to act intelligently and effectively in family life.

The Fatherhood Conference is designed to allow time for busy men to contemplate the following goals with other fathers:

- Think deeply about his partnership with his wife and his leadership role with their children
- Set high but realistic goals for himself and his children
- Learn practical approaches from the experience of other fathers
- Deepen his spiritual life and see God's will for his vocation as a father.
